

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This new method of applying French manicure and airbrush designs using a spray bottle verses an airbrush machine will change the application time and the usual training required. The bottle is more like a spray paint aerosol can but will be packaged in a more smaller and sleek version. This will allow for easy handling and usage. The application method will require designs stencils already used in the industry and are available in the general market place.